MARDI GRAS

The Carnival Pageant in the Crescent City.

CHARACTERS AND COSTUMES OF ALL AGES REPRESENTED—"REX" RADIANT IN GOLD AND GLITTERING WITH GEMS—A GORGEOUS RETINUE OF KINGS AND CHORUS SINGERS—MAGNIFICENT MUMMERY FOR THE MODERATE SUM OF $50,000—SATURNALIA OF DRUNKENNESS, RIOT AND DEBAUCHERY IN MEMPHIS

[Special Telegram]

NEW ORLEANS, Feb 17—The Mardi Gras carnival festivities have closed upon the most brilliant and successful display ever recorded in the annals of its history in New Orleans The day opened cloudy, and at 8 o clock occurred a fall of rain but an hour later the sun shone out, and the murky atmosphere of space and mud gave place to clearing skies and rejoicing hopes, which found fruition in as lovely a day as the calendar has ever known On Monday, at 12 o clock the

and the [illegible] Shah of Persia, attended by their courts, reached the city by the United States steamer John A Dix and after a reception at the St Charles Hotel and a subsequent visit to the free matinees at the theaters, they visited the opera house at night

Early this morning the city was alive with multitudes of people Thousands upon thousands of spectators took their place upon galleries and within buildings, and thronged the thoroughfares set down in the route of the procession, while upon every hand, maskers on foot, on horseback, and in carriages, roamed merrily through space Later on, the masses of humanity swelled in volume, until at 12 o clock Canal street was fairly impassable from end to end It was SIMPLY A LIVING SEA.

At that hour, in the vicinage of the City Hall on St Charles street, was sounded the heralding notes of the approach of the King and his pageant and directly the spectacle burst to view. The procession, which came winding its way from street to street in its almost endless details, typified the manners and customs which have prevailed since the Ostrogoths overran Italy and conquered Rome to the present time It was, indeed a grand and instructive scene, illustrating

EVERY GRADE OF CIVILIZATION

Which has existed in the long period in which Rex is supposed to have lived and reigned There were the rude Northmen from the bleak shores of the Baltic the Goths and Visigoths the fair children of Circassia the Turks of the olden periods the classic Roman the children of the Orient the descendants of Ham and the voluptuous Persians the Moors from Spain the musical Italians of later periods the various types of modern civilization—in all and through all appearing the standards of the

CRESCENT AND THE CROSS,

And the whole completing itself in every concept of American life and manners Leading this brilliant throng were two mounted buglers, who from time to time sounded the appropriate calls, as the procession moved or halted. A man at arms, ready to challenge foes, followed close behind the buglers and after him a Roman galley drawn by four sea horses, on the poop of which was borne in tableaux of living characters the royal coat of arms surmounted by a banner, on which was inscribed "Make way for the King" In the galley was concealed a chime of bells, which rang out their melody in announcement of the approach of the king of the carnival Besides these the galley was

FULL-FREIGHTED WITH BONBONS

Which were, from time to time thrown out to the people Following this was seen the earl marshal of the empire attended by the Persian legion, 300 strong, representing the artillery, infantry and cavalry branches of the service. They were attired in the brilliant Shah's uniform of crimson and gold and presented at once an unique and Oriental appearance Behind them rode the Shah of Persia and his suite appareled in gorgeous uniforms The dress of the Shah was a perfect representation of the costume worn by that potentate on the occasion of his recent European visit and with which the realms [illegible] Four mounted heralds preceding the dukes of the realm made way for the royal body guard, 300 strong in bright scarlet uniforms wearing brass helmets Their appearance was strikingly rich and picturesque In their midst in a hollow square attended by heralds and pages—the latter bearing the royal crown and orbs the keys of the city—and priests with censors

ROI [illegible] KING

On a noble charger He wore a [illegible] burnished gilt chain armour with helmet and visor of gold and fairly blazed with decorations of jewels and precious stones The appearance of Rex was in the character of his father the Gothic king who with his victorious armies overran Italy and made the conquest of Rome in the reign of [illegible] the younger Altogether the scene presented was as brilliant as it was unique The shining uniforms the burnished helmets [illegible] the command [illegible] the herald the priesthood and the burning incense which filled the air with its aromatic fragrance constituted an ensemble which could only be adequately apprehended by being seen

Following came the royal household of fifty persons mounted In general appearance the [illegible] types of Rex himself being in full suit of chain mail and wearing helmets the front of which glittered with precious stones Immediately in the rear of the court were a hundred warriors armed with lances and dressed in steel mail and helmets The court and the warriors in all their appointments were full [illegible] of the barbaric period of [illegible] in the seventh century of Rome [illegible] following this

BARBARIC HORDE

Here the lord warden of the tower [illegible] with him the traditional executioner Around them was a guard of soldiers armed with halberds and dressed in antique armor and steel helmets. Their battle axes were real weapons of steel and their horses were covered with leopard skins Altogether the guard was a perfect representation of the relentless soldiery of a barbarous people and age Behind the warden of the tower followed the executioner surrounded by a special guard of about twenty soldiers armed with halberds Before him was borne the block for the execution of prisoners all smeared with blood and on the spears of the guard were carried the

GHASTLY HEADS

Of those who had been executed during the morning. Amid a blaze of splendor rode Boabdil El Chico the enchanted king, and the last of the Moorish monarchs of Granada Boabdil once in each hundred years he is relieved from his enchantment and allowed to appear in the form of his ancient power and grandeur His costume was rich beyond description, dazzling in colors and jewels—on either side of him rode two princes, and behind them four officers in a chariot. Next came

THE FOUR QUEENS

Of Boabdil on horseback, with long flowing robes and presenting a most picturesque appearance Immediately behind the queens appeared their maids of honor four in number riding in palanquins which were carried by negroes The courtiers of the now disenchanted King came next in this grand and beautiful display They were dressed in the costumes of the period of Boabdil's actual reign in Granada wearing overcaftans of gold under ones of white satin pantaloons of buff blue and white belts and green cloaks Six of them had steel helmets and were armed with battle-axes and cuffs and collars of like material, none were armed with scimeters Others wore gold helmets which sparkled with jewels and were armed with gold hilted scimetar They were the antique and turbaned heroes of the wild enthusiasm of a long past age The warriors of Boabdil came next, the impersonation of a barbaric people and age We have now reached the end of the impersonation of Boabdil and his followers and it only remains to speak of the

THIRTY ONE CHORUS SINGERS

Attached to his troupe These consisted of chorus singers from the French opera They rode in a large open float and at given places sang favorite choruses from Le Grande Duchesse La Fille de Mme Angot La Muette De Portici La Favorita La Dame Blanche and other operas Throughout Boabdil was a reality so nearly did the impersonations approach the dress and the methods of the long ago when he was monarch of Granada There was no tinsel there were no shams everything was indeed what it seemed to be All the costumes unique as the period they were intended to represent, were made of the most expensive material The swords were real swords the spears were real spears the helmets were real helmets the conception of Boabdil as entering in the grand festivity was a grand one, and was executed in a most elaborate manner The king's pageant was brought to a termination with a troop of 600 mounted Circassian soldiers called the King's Own 92d Lancers The horsemen of this command were dressed in a style of purely Circassian with the exception of the cross worn in honor of the Christian king the tunic being purple and the vest being green bordered with yellow while the coat had a border of white ermine The procession closed with an

ALMOST INTERMINABLE CAVALCADE

Of all the maskers gathered in from the populace and these embraced all the devices and displays known to the fertility of human imagination Upward of 5,000 persons participated in the pageant and a common estimate set it down that it was witnessed by more than 200 000 spectators fully one third of whom were strangers The prominent thoroughfares were adorned upon every hand with waving flags and countless decorations so that wherever the eye was turned it was greeted with picturesque beauty attended by the joyous animation of the people The route was from Canal street to the upper portion of the city thence returning the lower town was visited and at 4 o clock after a few hours march the

HOSTS WERE DISBANDED

As an evidence of the lavish display in the spectacle it may be mentioned that it involved an outlay of more than $50 000 At night, the King the Shah and Boabdil in palanquins carried by Moorish slaves and escorted by the King's body guard, passed through the streets and attended the ball given by the King's Own and subsequently the Mystic Krew's ball At 11 o clock the royal ballet exposition ball was visited where for three hours thereafter the three potentates held a reception in the throne room which had been appointed with regal magnificence and where prevailed an observance of all the forms of royalty quite bewildering to the mind of the average democratic American

THE MYSTIC KREWE

The 14th annual parade of the Mystic Krewe of Comus transpired to night and proved perhaps the most delightful of all the services of this magnificent representation The theme was envoys to the court of Comus from the Old and New Worlds, and was embossed on 21 cars each bearing a group of living figures each typifying the various countries of the world, to-wit Europe—Britain France Germany Russia Italy Scandinavia Spain Asia—Turkey Arabia China India Persia Africa America—The United States and the West Indies Each type was a faithful allegory and was embellished with all the attributes trappled in beautiful costumes and accessories necessary to a proper conception of the story sought to be told More than 20 balls held in every quarter of the city contributed to the glory of the festival, and in the early hours of the next day closed upon a record of the [illegible] history of our Mardi Gras celebration

MEMPHIS Feb 17—The carnival was a greatly grand procession as was expected this afternoon although interrupted by the weather which has been gloomy and rainy all day. The streets were filled by a promiscuous mob of maskers during the day and evening Although there were but few arrests there was the greatest latitude given to drunkenness lewdness upon the streets Notwithstanding the rain and mud the streets were crowded during the day with strangers It is believed this will be the last of Mardi Gras here The Memphis a very select and aristocratic crew made their parade to night under the light of aluminum and torches [illegible] made a very sorry show and their particular fairly select ball to night was thinly attended as it was conducted on altogether too close a [illegible]

UNITY OF THE CHURCH.

Dear Christian Brethren After careful and [illegible] examination of the subject through a course of some thirty years I am impressed deeply with the sense of the great importance of a general and practical union among all those who love the Lord Jesus in sincerity and truth It is true that many Christians and even ministers of the Gospel [illegible] that there exists now as much harmony among the different denominations as Christ contemplated when he prayed that his people might all be one They say that they all believe in Jesus Christ, all believe in the [illegible] of repentance faith and regeneration Well I am truly glad there is so much harmony and that there is so much spiritual union among them, that there is not as little as [illegible] there [illegible] a spirit of brotherly love [illegible] prevading among the different sects at the present time But does this constitute the union contemplated To my mind it does not The prayed for union was compared to the relation existing between the Father and the Son—that harmonious union in which there never was discord or jar The present fraternity among the different religious denominations is rather a forced toleration of each other, than a loving and harmonious co operation in the great work of converting the world

Again many seem to think that the divisions and subdivisions into which the Church is rent are absolutely essential to its growth and progress in the world If the various denominations are necessary to the success of the cause the question very naturally arises whether there is exactly the right number now or whether there should not be a few more organized

The circumstances under which the denominations arose may have justified the measure at the time but if so I think the circumstances have passed away and the necessity no longer exists As it now is the strength of the church is divided our means are frittered away in building probably four or five little uncomfortable houses of worship in a village of as many hundred inhabitants where one good house and a united church would do more good than all of them Again not only is the strength and means of the church wasted but greatly worse—the affections of the children of God are divided and a spirit of rivalry and jealousy is engendered and maintained among those who ought to dwell together in unity It is useless to attempt to disguise the fact that the different denominations feel but little interest in the prosperity of each other. And so long as we are divided into different factions, different families, and called by different names—some Presbyterian, some Methodist some Baptists &c —this state of dissension will continue It is I believe universally admitted among Christians that Jesus Christ has but one family Consequently the members thereof should all be called by the same name—of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named Christian is the name we all love and respect and the only one Let us therefore lay aside our sectarian names and come together as a band of brethren under the name Christian which is the only name upon which the loved of Jesus ever can unite

It is objected by many that the name Christian has already been assumed by a sect among us, and the objectors do not wish to fall in with that body In answer, I have to say that no sect has a right to assume that name, because that name is general and necessarily includes every disciple of Jesus Christ Therefore any body or association of persons who hedge themselves about with such rules and regulations as necessarily exclude a large part of the true disciples of the Lord Jesus have miscalled themselves and are appropriating that to which they have no just claim The word sect implies a fraction or part separated Hence all organizations and associations of professing Christians who make anything but simple naked Christianity a test of membership in their communions are emphatically sects and nothing more For instance all organizations that make immersion in water a test of membership are sects and should be called immersionists as this is the distinguishing feature in their system Or any other outward physical act being made a test of membership places the body making it in the same category A true Christian church makes Christianity alone the test of membership Such a church will receive into its communion every one who receives Jesus Christ as his Savior and walks according to his understanding of Christ's teachings The church which claims or exercises the right to interpret the Scriptures for true believers before admitting them to membership assumes to itself the idea of infallibility Again a church that [illegible] rejects such persons as Jesus Christ receives can hardly claim to be a church of His but is a human institution and not entitled to be called by His name

It a man believe [illegible] enough [illegible] to constitute him a Christian [illegible] and no man may reject Him without a conflict with the Good Shepherd What [illegible] cleansed let no man call unclean If individual Christians are not to be permitted to worship God in accordance with their own understanding of Gospel teaching wherefore should they study the Scriptures If the church has the right to interpret the Scriptures and to reject all who do not receive its interpretation the Romish church has not gone so far astray as Protestants have been in the habit of supposing and it is very fortunate that the [illegible] infallible [illegible] that his decisions are always correct What can be said in justification of those Protestant churches which disclaim the idea of infallibility and yet exclude [illegible] their communion all who do not [illegible] their interpretation of Scripture

But to return to the unity of the church The Savior said There shall be one fold and one shepherd and although there may be but one shepherd there [illegible] fold [illegible] which I believe they all united [illegible] the separating wall which stood between Jesus and the Gentiles was removed Jesus Christ having abolished in his flesh the enmity even the law of commandments contained in ordinances for to make in himself of twain one new man so making peace [illegible] Now I beseech you brethren by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ that ye all speak the same thing and that there be no divisions among you but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment [illegible] As Christ was [illegible] the [illegible] His children The prayer that He [illegible] offered up [illegible] is abundant evidence of His anxiety upon this subject That they all may be one as Thou Father art in Me and I in Thee that they also may be one in Us that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me [illegible]

[illegible] cannot stand it seems to me high time that we [illegible] our sectarian names [illegible] of Christians [illegible] under the one grand banner [illegible] then shall we present [illegible] hosts of infidelity the [illegible] and united front of the whole Christian [illegible] sectarian names are more than three hundred years old and [illegible] of the Celestial City [illegible] reason why we would not be willing to drop them before [illegible] bring [illegible] influence to bear in behalf of the King [illegible] Jesus Christ and [illegible] one glorious and undivided brotherhood in Christ Jesus that the world may believe that the Father hath sent His Son to seek and to save that which was lost

But perhaps many are ready to enquire How is this general union of Christians to be effected How are the many difficulties that lie in the way to be met? I answer to my mind, the difficulties are not near as many nor as [illegible] easily overcome [illegible] First [illegible] withdraw from our present church connections in an orderly manner Second Associate ourselves together in organizations under the simple name of Christian Churches Third Let every person be received a member who seriously professes to receive Jesus Christ as his Savior and endeavor in accordance with his best understanding to live in obedience to His commandments [illegible] questions that do not affect the salvation of the soul let every one be fully persuaded in his own mind In essentials unity, in non-essentials liberty in all things charity

The following may be presented as a basis of union for the entire family of Jesus Christ viz

1 The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments shall be the rule of faith and practice

2 Every member shall enjoy the privilege of studying and understanding the Scriptures for himself and of performing all acts of worship in accordance with his own sense of duty without dictation or interference from any source whatever

3 While every one shall be permitted to hold and teach what he believes true none shall denounce or condemn another for enjoying, or exercising, similar privileges In short all to be governed by the principle of doing unto others as they would have others do unto them

In conclusion I invite correspondence from all Christian brethren and friends who may feel inclined to investigate the great principle of Christian unity All papers friendly to the cause please copy

"CHRISTIAN STATESMAN."

There does appear no good reason why there should not be such a thing as a "Christian Statesman." The civilization of the European and American nations, is very properly spoken of by the most considerate writers as a "Christian civilization." The countries, in which the religion of the Bible prevails, in some of its forms, are commonly designated as "Christian countries." The manners and customs peculiar to the people of those countries, are called "Christian customs," and that, too, without regard to the question whether or not each particular individual under the dominion of those customs, is a member of the Christian Church. It is the agreement of a particular style of civilization, of a particular system of social customs, of a particular Government in its general scope and purposes with the leading ideas of the Christian religion, that gives the appellative "Christian;" and we can perceive no reason why a statesman of broad views, of honest practices, of philanthropic purposes, of correct moral principles, devoted to serving the human family by securing to them the benefits of good government, the blessings of liberty and peace based upon the principle of equality before the law, and unpurchased justice to all men, rich and poor—we see no reason, we say, why "Christian Statesman" is not the most appropriate name by which to distinguish such a man, in a Christian country, from the selfish, narrow-souled politician whose talent is mere cunning, whose understanding of political questions is limited to the authoritative declarations of party conventions, whose purposes and objects reach not beyond the personal aims of himself and his especial associates. It is the fashion of the times, we are aware, to use the phrase "Christian Statesman" as an opprobrious epithet, or for the purpose of casting ridicule upon the person to whom it is applied. But fashion though it is, we confess to no sympathy with it. It is the age of shoddy, the age of Credit Mobilier, the age of back-pay, the age of bribery without shame, theft without punishment, polygamy without disgrace—the age of Tweed, Hipple, Morrissey, Durell—that ridicules a man by calling him a Christian.

COMING TO THE CONFESSIONAL.

It is encouraging to observe that even the ring conscience is becoming susceptible to the influences of the times. That such is the case is evidenced by the givings-out of the ring organ in this city during the last few days. In last Saturday's edition of that paper, we have the distinct admission "there is need of reform in many directions." It is true this concession is hedged round with a multitude of restrictions and caveats as to the "class of men" who are capable of inaugurating the needful reforms, the "channels" through which they must come, and other such matters of detail as affect the question of the continuance of the Custom House ring in office. Of course it could not be expected that any such admission of the necessity of reform would be found in the Bulletin, unless it were coupled with appropriate saving clauses for the benefit of the ring, the members of that close corporation being regarded by themselves and declared through their organ to be the only "class of men" fit to be the "channel" through which Government funds are disbursed. But it is something to get the admission under any circumstances.

And then look at the Bulletin of Monday. One would almost be led to hope the instrument of the ring who is engaged ad interim to father the articles that appear as editorials in the bribers' organ, is soundly converted, only that death-bed conversions, no odds how demonstrative, are hardly ever sound. Here is from Monday's Bulletin:

> It is beyond doubt that sufficient economy is not observed in the control of public affairs. Extravagant ideas, which have grown up little by little, prevail; an expense once allowed is found difficult to retrench; while it is always easy to add more and more. The burden of local taxation is complained of generally throughout the State, and very properly there is a purpose at work to introduce and enforce wherever it may be possible stricter ideas of economy.

And again:

> It is undeniable that business and industry are too much burdened with taxation, and improvement in this direction cannot come a minute too soon.

The Bulletin has evidently discovered that it will not do to sneer at the efforts of the people to secure reform in the matter of public expenditures, and has concluded to take the advice of Mr. Pickwick and shout with the crowd since he cannot shout them down. The current got so strong the ring could not stem it, and forthwith their organ cries out, "See how we apples swim!"

THE BOTTOM OF THINGS.

"Reform, to be rational and effective, must go to the bottom of things."—Bulletin.

Just so. It has been demonstrated that neither of the political parties is disposed to "go to the bottom of things," and make the reforms which are admitted to be necessary. The enormous fees of sheriffs, clerks and other officers, which constitute a large portion of the unnecessary expenses, have been enacted by and supported by both parties. The creation of new offices with salaries, and the increase of the salaries of old ones, are the work of both parties. The subsidizing of private enterprises out of the public purse, can not be laid at the door of one party more than the other. The people have resolved to go to "the bottom of things," and they will make the first dash at the bottom by seeing to it that new men are put in control of public affairs, who acknowledge no higher allegiance to party than to the welfare of all the citizens of the country.

We are reliably informed that only six men in Benton county, outside of Corvallis, have declined to sign the call for an Independent County and State Ticket. Three of these are Republicans, two Democrats, and the other is opposed to all things that are or ever will be. With the exception of these six persons, it is said every man has signed the call to whom it has been presented.

NOT QUITE SO BAD.

We find this in the Bulletin of yesterday:

> Four or five years ago an era of speculation set in among the people of Oregon. It reached all classes. Property of all descriptions soon went up to inflation prices. Lands sold at enormous figures. Rating property at fictitious values, many thought they had amassed small fortunes by lucky speculation. Money was borrowed for investments of the wildest character. The authorities of Portland, infected with the general rage, paid $40,000 for a tract of land on the mountain west of the city, borrowing the money to pay for it; and we are now paying interest on this money at such a rate that it is absolutely certain that the land itself, if sold, would scarcely bring the amount of the interest charge for a single year. Yet the people demanded this outlay, as they demanded others in the "flush times."

This is partly true and partly otherwise. There is no room to doubt that the value of the ground purchased has decreased very considerably, say about the same as other lands in the vicinity of this city have depreciated during the same period. But the "interest charge for a single year" on the money borrowed would be only $4,000, whereas the park could be sold, it is safe to say, for $25,000 cash. The investment was not a fortunate one as no investment in lands at that time, (which, by the way, was about three years ago), and at the prices then customary, was fortunate; but the case is hardly so bad as it is made by the Bulletin to appear.

In the House, February 16th, Representative Kellogg, of Connecticut, introduced a bill abolishing the offices of the sixteen appraisers of merchandise appointed under the act of July 14, 1870. Portland, Oregon, is in the list. The other ports affected by the bill are Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Providence, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Mobile, Memphis, Evansville, Louisville, Detroit, Toledo, Pittsburg, Buffalo and Norfolk. The Washington correspondent of the New York Times says that the bill will save $48,000 annually to the Treasury, in salaries, besides a large sum for office and other expenses. He adds that many if not most of them are regarded as sinecure positions. The assertion is eminently true as regards this port. In point of fact, there isn't an officer in the Customs service at Portland who does a day's work once in three months. They are busy about election time, and that is all. If the number of employes were reduced one-half, the service would be in no wise impaired. Medorem Crawford, Esq., is the appraiser of merchandise, whose head would come off should Mr. Kellogg's bill become a law.

There appears to be a growing sentiment throughout the country that Congress made a mistake when it abolished the franking privilege. It is admitted on all hands that under the old law gross abuses were practiced, and that some action was necessary to prevent these, but there is an impression abroad that instead of abolishing the law entirely, and thus sweeping away the good along with the evil arising from it, the true course was to give attention to the matter in detail and make such amendments as would prevent the abuses and still furnish the free circulation through the mails of such reports and documents of a strictly public character, as would enable the whole country to be constantly informed of the condition of public affairs.

The Congressional Record which contains the official report of Senator Kelly's remarks at the time he presented the charges against Senator Hipple to the Senate, puts quite a different speech into the mouth of Kelly from that which was telegraphed. His remarks, as there reported, were that up to the time of Hipple's election as Senator he knew nothing derogatory to his character, and that he did not wish to express an opinion at that time as to the truth or falsity of the charges. This is the substance of his entire speech on the occasion in question.

The call for an Independent Convention in Washington county has already received the signatures of a large majority of the legal voters of the county. It provides for the selecting of Delegates to the State Independent Convention, as well as for the nomination of county officers.

Mr. Olson, Postmaster at Freeport, W. T., writes us that the Portland papers have failed for three successive weeks to reach that office. Where is our efficient Postal Agent all this time?

A FEW POINTED QUESTIONS.

EUGENE CITY, March 1, 1873.

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I notice in the Bulletin, of the 25th ult., under the heading "Needless Trouble," a batch of beautiful synonyms from Scott. "It takes all sorts of men to make a world," as the adage goes, and it is often the case that any sort of means are resorted to to meet a knotty case of dire necessity.

To fully appreciate such emanations as those contained in that article, we must first become acquainted with, and know how to estimate, the class of creatures that bring them forth. There is found in the range of mentality, a semi-intellectual type of life, that in many respects represent man; but on careful and fair analysis is found not to possess those higher traits of character which belong to a well developed manhood. They are destitute of that individualty and "moral entity" which constitute the man, and by which he is distinguished from the low orders of life. Whoever has become acquainted with Scott's corporeal make-up, has seen one of the peculiar and distinguishing features of his class. The intellectual scintillations which eminate from them, are still more remarkable. As they are destitute of a moral nature, everything of that character is hateful to them; and lacking individuality, their personale is always degraded to the condition of "hangers-on;" they are always "toadying to," and doing the work of base wretches, who, though intellectually far above them, are known in the scale of humanity as moral lepers.

It is understood, then, that when the class to which Scott belongs, resort to low, unmannerly and unmanly epithets and false representations, instead of meeting an opponent's position squarely and trying to disprove and dispose of it in a gentlemanly manner, they are only acting up to their intellectual and moral status as when they follow the course Scott does in reference to my articles in the OREGONIAN.

He knows full well, that so far as anything contained in my letters, referring to matters with which he was connected is concerned, that they are true; and, so far as he has any knowledge of other matters, they are true. But not being able to appreciate the value of truth, nor to disprove what has been written, he must be excused for resorting to the means he does to keep up appearances, and if possible to belittle his master's adversary. No generous man will find fault with another for not doing better than he knows how to do; and I trust I am fairly understood when I say that I cherish no feeling of resentment towards that class of men. Scott, in this matter, is not degrading himself below his level; he is not degrading his manhood for the creature cannot lose what he never possessed.

And now, Mr. Editor, that your readers may have a more favorable and thorough opportunity of studying Williams, Scott & Company, I propose to ask Mr. Scott some very plain questions, and easy of comprehension.

Were you, Mr. Scott, present with Williams at a private meeting in the city of New York, in the spring of 1870, when money was subscribed as a fund to be used to control the Oregon election to come off in June following? Did you explain to that meeting that money had been used by Democrats to buy votes and corrupt elections in and outside of Portland; and that money was needed by the friends of Judge Williams to be used in like manner to counteract such influence? Is it not a fact that money was furnished to you for such purpose, and was it not distributed at different points of the State? Have parties not been accused of using portions of the money sent them for such object, for their own private use? Is it not known to you that Judge Williams obtained a part of that money from parties interested in the Alaska Fur Company, of California, in consideration of his services to them and his treachery to his friends, who were forming such a company in Portland? Do you not know that certain gentlemen in high official positions met with Judge Williams in Mr. Holladay's rooms in Washington City, and informed Mr. Holladay that if he would return to Oregon and use his means to return Williams to the United States Senate, that he (Holladay) should have whatever he wanted in the line of legislation? And was not the Humboldt Branch Railroad bill killed at the request of Mr. H., in conformity with that arrangement? I assert that these things are so, or human testimony is valueless. And I assert further, that when Williams took the course he did, as touching the interest in which myself and others were directly engaged, that all the Republican papers of Oregon which had the widest circulation and considerable standing, had been closed by the same influence, against any explanation from myself or others in reference to those matters.

The paper you controlled refused, and was made to team with false statements in regard to them. The Journal office, of Eugene City, formerly purchased by myself and friends, and presented a free gift in part, to the man still owning it, did likewise, and for the same reasons.

But, sir, times have changed;

> "Truth crushed to earth will rise again,
> The eternal years of God are her's
> But error wounded writhes in pain,
> And dies amidst her worshippers."

You, therefore, may consider me as having passed your outposts—entered your citadel with my armor on, and by the god's (of Homer) I will at least teach your master that I can make my mark.

I therefore propose to follow this with a History—rich in incidents—of as much, or any part of those matters as in my judgment suits the present necessity of the times. I propose the history shall be devoted mainly to the overthrow of the Humboldt Branch R. R., showing that the reasons given for its defeat were false; why it was done, and for whose benefit. I propose to show what the measure was, what good it would have accomplished for the State, and what was lost in its overthrow. I will prove that a clandestine effort is now on foot to steal from the line of the grant through Southern Oregon, and slip over onto the Middle Fork, or "Pengra route," and forever bind in shackles the R. R. and industrial interests of Oregon to the use and benefit of one man, and close this series of articles by pointing out the way to the commercial and all industrial interests of the State, of a present remedy and final relief.

But that I may not be misunderstood and misconstrued, I desire to state beforehand that though I once spent a good deal of money and four years valuable time to accomplish for Oregon what, in my humble judgment, would have been of vast benefit to her, with a reasonable degree of selfishness as regards myself, yet I have no motive, no object in view in doing what I proposed, but the welfare of every right interest of the entire State. My time and this effort is neither dedicated to a political party nor any other interest save the general welfare. Time alone will tell whether it has been ill or well spent.

B. J. PENGRA.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA ITEMS.

We clip the following items from the Yreka Journal of the 25th:

The amount of rainfall since our last issue measured 1-600th of an inch, this being about the smallest quantity of rain during any week since the 1st of December last. Nevertheless, there has been much snow on the mountains that did not reach us.

The organization of Modoc county reduces the number of school districts to 30, in place of 55, twenty-five being in Eastern Siskiyou. Professor Godfrey has been having a good thing at $20 a district, with traveling expenses, etc., for the past two years, with new districts hatching out every year.

Cattle and sheep are still dying off in great numbers in this county, and grass is more backward in coming up than ever before known. Grass and wild flowers usually start in February, but there is no sign of any yet. The present winter has been the most severe on stock that we have known in the county. Still there will be a large surplus of stock left to keep down prices of beef.

Governor Booth on Wednesday appointed Wm. McCormick, Sr., W. A. McClure, George Townsend, Columbus Dorris and W. B. Swearingen, as Commissioners to perfect the organization of Modoc county, under the provisions of an act to create the County of Modoc, approved February 17th, 1874. Also appointed Julius Holleman as County Judge of said county.

L. R. Parker, of Hot Spring Valley, lost 2,000 out of 3,000 sheep lately, in attempting to drive them through Cedarville Pass to Surprise Valley. Parker, while driving them, was caught in a snow storm, and proceeded to Fort Bidwell, for the soldiers to come to his relief. The soldiers started down immediately and broke a trail through the snow, saving only about 1,000 head. The recent storms in Eastern Siskiyou have caused an immense loss of stock, and cattle are dying in all the valleys in great numbers.

The daily newspapers in the United Kingdom sum up as follows in 1874: London, 24; Provinces, 72; Ireland, 18; Scotland, 13; Wales, 2; Channel Islands, 2—total, 131.

CALL FOR AN INDEPENDENT STATE CONVENTION.

The Douglas County Independent Tax Payers Convention having assembled this 28th day of February, 1874, and nominated a full Legislative and County ticket, and having adjourned in full harmony, a large majority of the members then assembled and having organized for the purpose of recommending an Independent State ticket, the following resolution, on motion, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Convention the interests of the people of Oregon will be better subserved by independent political action than by strict adherence to existing party organizations, and that the people of the several counties of the State be, and hereby are, requested to select delegates to an Independent State Convention to be held at Salem on the 15th day of April, A. D. 1874, at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of nominating a State ticket to be presented to the voters at the coming election.

This Convention recommends that in selecting such delegates, the basis of apportionment be one delegate for every 200 votes cast at the election of 1872 for Wilson and Burnett, and one additional delegate for a fraction of 100 votes or over. Upon this basis the number of delegates from the respective counties will be as follows:

	Total Vote.	Delegates.
Baker	942	5
Benton	1,222	6
Clackamas	1,430	7
Clatsop	380	2
Coos	581	3

Total		127

On motion, the Convention further recommended that the people throughout the State assemble in their respective precincts on Saturday, March 28th, and elect delegates to assemble in County Conventions on Saturday, April 4, 1874 (except in those counties where steps have already been taken to choose delegates for meeting at some other time), and there elect delegates according to the above apportionment, to meet in State Convention to nominate State officers.

On motion, the Convention adjourned, there being 70 delegates present, and the proceedings marked by complete unanimity and harmony.

HOMESTEADS!

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, THAT the LANDS of the Oregon Central Military Road Company are offered for sale upon the following terms:

To actual occupants and for the purpose of actual occupation for one-fourth of the purchase price paid down and the balance in three equal annual installments; the purchaser to execute his promissory notes to the Company for such deferred payments, payable in one, two and three years, drawing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum until maturity, after which to draw interest at the rate of one per cent. per month; and the Company to execute to the purchaser a bond for a conveyance of the lands purchased by Special Warranty Deed conditioned upon payment of the notes.

Parties other than occupants desiring to purchase lands in large quantities, can purchase upon terms to be agreed upon, on making application, but actual settlers in all cases will be preferred upon making their application within a reasonable time.

Until further ordered, the price of lands can be ascertained by application being made to the Land Agent. All applications to purchase lands must be made to B. J. PENGRA, Land Agent of the Company, whose postoffice address is at Springfield, in Lane county, in this State.

All applications must be in writing; and must contain the description of the lands desired to be purchased, by the legal subdivisions; a statement of the kind and quality of the land, and its locality with reference to settlement, etc., and whether or not it is occupied, and if so by whom, and the date of such occupation, and upon the approval of the application the first installments of the purchase price must be paid to the Agent.

The placing of these lands in the market affords an excellent opportunity to settlers to procure homesteads in one of the finest portions of the State and of the most fertile lands upon this coast accessible from the Willamette Valley by a good wagon road and convenient to the older settlements, reasonable as to price and upon terms of payment within the reach of all.

Eugene City, February 27th, 1874.

RUNAWAY — SEVERELY KICKED.—A team attached to a milk wagon took fright yesterday morning on First street, near Columbia, and came dashing down at a furious speed. When the team came opposite the second-hand furniture store kept by Ira F. Powers, on First street, they ran against an awning post. The post was not knocked down, but the violence of the shock broke the tongue of the vehicle, the neck yoke and the whiffletrees. Both animals were prostrated, and entirely detached from the wagon, except by one trace which had not been broken loose from the whiffletree. Mr. J. S. Clark, who was standing on the sidewalk near by, sprang forward to detach the tug before the animals could rise. Just as he was stooping, and in the act of loosening the trace, one of the horses dealt him a powerful kick. The hoof struck him on the chin, cutting a deep gash. He was also thrown violently back against the fore-wheel, and a small gash cut on the rear portion of the head. Several persons who witnessed the accident came instantly to the rescue of Mr. Clarke. He was dragged back from under the horses' feet, and conveyed into the store. His injuries were so severe that he was rendered insensible for nearly half an hour. Dr. Jones, who happened to be passing at the moment, was called in and examined the injuries. No bones were broken, but the chin was severely cut, and almost dislocated by the blow. Soon after the accident, Mr. Clarke was removed to his house, and the gash sewed up by Dr. Jones. At last accounts he was resting as comfortable as could be expected. His escape was very fortunate.

A SCALP RECOVERED.—At the Oregon Museum can be seen a human scalp which was torn from the head of a white man during the late brief but eventful Modoc difficulties. This scalp was taken from the head of a soldier named Charles Brenner, who belonged to Company C of the Twenty-First Infantry. He was the first man killed in the engagement with the Indians on the 7th day of January, 1873. A comrade of the deceased, named Wm. Lenten, recovered the scalp on the 17th of last August. It was found in the possession of the Indians and identified at once. Brenner was a German by birth and a native of Pennsylvania, where, we understand, he has relatives still living. It is also stated that he has relations residing somewhere on this coast. We are requested to state that the scalp of this brave fellow is not on exhibition at the Museum merely to gratify public curiosity, as that would appear almost inhuman, but it is for the purpose of enabling, if possible, his friends and relatives to recognize the name of the dead soldier, and identify the scalp. The scalp includes the entire skin covering the head. The skin was severed clear to the bone from the temples back and around the base of the skull. In their haste to secure the bloody trophy, the inhuman fiends had cut is a way one of the ears, and tore that organ away, so that it is still attached to the scalp, and in a perfect and natural state of preservation.

DISGRACEFUL ACTING.—An exchange has the following concerning the disgraceful performances of Harry Courtaine, the well known low comedian, who recently appeared as "Bob Ticket" at the San Jose Opera House on the occasion of a benefit [illegible] graceful and accomplished [illegible] and Laura [illegible], who visited [illegible] with Wilson's circus [illegible] most disgraceful performance [illegible] perpetrated on a respectable audience [illegible] at the San Jose Opera House [illegible]. So vulgar were his [illegible] The [illegible] made extraordinary [illegible] benefit of Harry and Laura [illegible] and [illegible] impression that there would [illegible] performance to mock the [illegible] efforts were crowned [illegible] Opera House was crowded [illegible] as fine an audience [illegible]. How mortified [illegible] assumed appeared [illegible] and began his obscenities [illegible] was this mortification [illegible] Washington [illegible] who were [illegible] sold the largest [illegible] refused to accept it."

TIME OF MEETING.—As far back in the history of [illegible] our memory will [illegible] Portland has [illegible] each week. [illegible] has convened Wednesday evenings excepting of [illegible] New Year, Thanksgiving, or [illegible] occurred on that day, or [illegible] was present. But at length [illegible] of the City Dads [illegible] for the future, rule 22 [illegible] special meeting held [illegible] was determined as follows: [illegible] of the Council shall be [illegible] the first and third Wednesdays [illegible]. The hours of meeting are [illegible]: from March 1st to June 1st, [illegible] P. M.; from June 1st to September 1st [illegible] P. M.; from September 1st to December 1st 7:30 o'clock P. M.; from December 1st to March 1st, 7 o'clock P. M. Conformable to this rule a meeting of the Council will be held to-morrow evening, and on the evening of the 18th.

COMPLIMENTS RECEIVED.—Upon our table [illegible] placed last evening the compliments in the shape of wine and cake, of A. C. Miller and wife. So we see "Gus" has went and gone and done it. Last evening Mr. Miller took unto himself a wife in the person of Miss [illegible] Hochstein. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the friends of the happy couple were invited to the Turn Verein Hall, where they partook of a feast of good things, and finally wound up with a succession of terpsichorean efforts. That all enjoyed themselves, no one can doubt. We wish Mr. Miller fully as many "sweets" in married life as he has enjoyed in his daily routine of business, and to his lady we say she has won a "prize" in a man that is well worth keeping. She is not a "small belle," and we guess Gus knows how [illegible] himself—don't it?

HELD TO ANSWER.—Yesterday morning the case of State vs. Perry G. Baker was called in the Police Court. The State was represented by C. W. Parrish, and the defendant by J. A. [illegible]. During the progress of trial, the fact was elicited that the defendant was the aggressor; that he had assaulted the person of [illegible] Habersham in an unprovoked and unwarrantable manner; that the assault was made with a dangerous weapon, to wit, a knife and accompanied with such threats as would lead the prosecuting witness to infer that he seriously meditated taking his life. The Court held that an assault with intent to kill had been committed, and therefore held the defendant to answer the charge in the sum of $500. The required bonds were furnished, and Mr. Baker discharged at once from custody.

FRENCH [illegible].—On Sunday, Mr. Simon who resides in East Portland, hired a strange man who had made application to him for work. He gave the man a bed in his house [illegible] he retired quite early in the evening. Early yesterday morning Mr. Simon went to the bed chamber to wake the man up. He knocked at the door several times, but receiving no response, he pushed it open. To his surprise he discovered the bed unoccupied, and on observing a little more closely perceived that his hired man had taken with him the blankets, the sheet and pillows, and [illegible] to quarters unknown. Mr. Simon thinks the fellow has a peculiar way of showing his gratitude.

BOUND OVER.—[illegible] Connor, the proprietor of a low, disreputable brothel at the corner of [illegible] and Second streets, was arrested last Saturday, charged with keeping a house of ill-fame. The case came up for trial yesterday [illegible] in Police Court. Several police officers were examined as to the guilt of defendant. It appearing to the mind of the Court that the defendant was guilty as charged in the complaint, he was held to answer before the grand jury in the sum of $250. Connor furnished the bonds required and was discharged from custody.

IMPORTANT IF TRUE.—The Vancouver Register says that "a gentleman from Portland informs us that it is rumored upon the streets of that city that the Headquarters Department of the Columbia have been ordered removed from Portland to Fort Vancouver." We have not heard any such reports being circulated here, although there may be some foundation for the rumor.

CITY.

RUNAWAY — SEVERELY KICKED — A team attached to a milk wagon took fright yesterday morning on First street near Columbia and came dashing down at a furious speed When the team came opposite the second-hand furniture store kept by Ira F Powers on First street, they ran against an awning post The pole was knocked down but the violence of the shock broke the tongue of the vehicle the neck yoke and the whiffletrees Both animals were prostrated and entirely detached from the wagon except by one trace which had not been broken loose from the whiffletree Mr J S Clark who was standing on the sidewalk near by, sprang forward to hold the team before the animals could rise Just as he was stooping and in the act of loosening the trace one of the horses dealt him a powerful kick The hoof struck him on the chin cutting a deep gash He was also thrown violently back against the fore wheel and a small gash cut on the rear portion of the head Several persons who witnessed the accident came instantly to the rescue of Mr Clarke He was dragged back from under the horses feet and conveyed into the store His injuries were so severe that he was rendered insensible for nearly half an hour Dr Jones who happened to be passing at the moment was called in and examined the injuries No bones were broken but the chin was severely cut and almost dislocated by the blow Soon after the accident Mr Clarke was removed to his house and the gash sewed up by Dr Jones At last accounts he was resting as comfortable as could be expected His escape was very fortunate

A SCALP ON THE HEAD — At the Oregon Museum can be seen a human scalp which was torn from the head of a white man during the late brief but eventful Modoc difficulties This scalp was taken from the head of a soldier named Charles Brenner who belonged to Company C of the Twenty First Infantry He was the first man killed in the engagement with the Indians on the 7th day of January, 1873 A comrade of the deceased named Wm Fenton, recovered the scalp on the 17th of last August It was found in the possession of the Indians and identified at once Brenner was a German by birth and a native of Pennsylvania, where, we understand he has relatives still living It is also stated that he has relations residing somewhere on this coast We are requested to state that the scalp of this brave fellow is not on exhibition at the Museum merely to gratify public curiosity as that would appear almost inhuman but it is for the purpose of enabling if possible, his friends and relatives to recognize the name of the dead soldier, and identify the scalp The scalp includes the entire skin covering the head The skin was severed clear to the bone from the temples back and around the base of the skull In their haste to secure the bloody trophy, the inhuman fiends had cut below one of the ears, and tore that organ away so that it is still attached to the scalp and in a perfect and natural state of preservation

DISGRACEFUL ACTING — An exchange has the following concerning the disgraceful performances of Harry Courtaine, the well known low comedian, who recently appeared as "Bob Ticket" at the San Jose Opera House on the occasion of a benefit tendered those graceful and accomplished gymnasts Harry and Laura Clark, who visited Portland last summer with Wilson's circus Perhaps the most disgraceful performance that was ever perpetrated on a respectable audience occurred at the San Jose Opera House by Harry Courtaine So vulgar were his words and actions that a number in the dress circle got up and left The firemen of that city and Santa Clara had made extraordinary efforts to make this benefit of Harry and Laura Clark a substantial one and sold many tickets, under the impression that there would be nothing in the performance to shock the most refined Their efforts were crowned with success, and the Opera House was crowded from pit to dome with as fine an audience as ever graced its interior How mortified were they when this vagabond appeared in the first piece and began his obscenities. To such an extent was this mortification felt that Washington Hose Co, who were entitled to the trumpet having sold the largest number of tickets, refused to accept it

TIME OF MEETING — As far back in the history of this municipality as our memory will admit the Common Council of Portland has held its meetings on one evening of each week For some years past that body has convened on Wednesday evenings excepting of course, when Christmas New Year, Thanksgiving, or the Fourth of July occurred on that day or when no quorum was present But at length this long established custom of the "City Dads" is to be interrupted and changed for the future By rule 32, read and adopted at the special meeting held last Saturday evening it was determined as follows The regular meetings of the Council shall hereafter be held on the first and third Wednesdays of each month The hours of meeting are fixed as follows From March 1st to June 1st 7 30 o clock P M from June 1st to September 1st 8 o clock P M from September 1st to December 1st 7 30 o clock P M , from December 1st to March 1st 7 o clock P M Conformable to this rule a meeting of the Council will be held to-morrow evening and on the evening of the 19th inst

COMPLIMENTS RECEIVED — Upon our table was placed last evening the compliments in the shape of wine and cake, of A C Miller and wife So we see Gus has went and gone and done it Last evening Mr Miller took unto himself a wife in the person of Miss Mary Hochelsen At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the friends of the happy couple were invited to the Turn Verein Hall where they partook of a feast of good things and finally wound up with a succession of terpsichorean efforts That all enjoyed themselves no one can doubt We wish Mr Miller fully as many "sweets" in married life as he has enjoyed in his daily routine of business and to his lady we say she has won a "prize" in Gus that is well worth keeping She is not a "dumb bell(e)" and we guess Gus knows how it is himself don't it?

HELD TO ANSWER.—Yesterday morning the case of State vs Perry G Baker was called in the Police Court The State was represented by C W Parrish, and the defendant by J A Chapman During the progress of trial the fact was elicited that the defendant was the aggressor that he had assaulted the person of Mr Habersham in an unprovoked and unwarrantable manner that the assault was made with a dangerous weapon, to wit a knife and accompanied with such threats as would lead the prosecuting witness to infer that he seriously meditated taking his life The Court held that an assault with intent to kill had been committed, and therefore held the defendant to answer the charge in the sum of $500 The required bonds were furnished and Mr Baker discharged at once from custody

FRENCH LEAVE — On Sunday Mr Simon who resides in East Portland hired a strange man who had made application to him for work He gave the man a bed in his house and he retired quite early in the evening Early yesterday morning Mr Simon went to the bed chamber to wake the man up He knocked at the door several times but receiving no response he pushed it open To his surprise he discovered the bed unoccupied, and on observing [illegible] perceived that his hired man had taken with him all the blankets the sheet and pillow and eloped to quarters unknown Mr Simon [illegible] thus the fellow has repaid a kindness [illegible] his gratitude

BAWDY HOUSE — [illegible] the proprietor of a disreputable brothel at the [illegible] and [illegible] street was arrested last Saturday charged with keeping a house of ill fame The case came up for trial yesterday morning in Police Court Several police officers were examined as to the guilt of defendant It appearing to the mind of the Court that the defendant was guilty as charged in the complaint he was held to answer before the grand jury in the sum of $250 Connor furnished the bonds required and was discharged from custody

IMPORTANT IF TRUE — The Vancouver Independent says that a gentleman from Portland informs us that it is rumored upon the streets of that city that the Headquarters Department of the Columbia have been ordered removed from Portland to Fort Vancouver We have not heard any such reports being circulated here although there may be some foundation for the rumor

MONTHLY CALENDAR OF CRIME — From the first of January up to the present date the following arrests have been made by the Police force Assault and battery 21 drunken and disorderly conduct 61 defacing a building 4 larceny 15 assault with intent to commit rape 1 carrying a concealed weapon 1 using obscene language, 6 splitting and sawing wood on the sidewalk 29 vagrancy 1 malicious injury to personal property 1 neglecting to clean streets 1 receiving stolen goods 2 assault with intent to kill 1 keeping a bawdy house 1

LAND DECISIONS — The mandates from the Supreme Court of the United States in the two cases between Dr Davenport and the Lownsdale Heirs were presented yesterday to the U S Circuit Court Judge Deady presiding One of these cases having been decided by the Circuit Court in favor of the heirs and the other in favor of Dr Davenport each was appealed to the Supreme Court by the losing party and that Court sustained the decision of the Circuit Court in both cases

SURVEY — Lieut Frank K Ward First Cavalry by order from the War Department commenced the re-survey of the Government Reservation at Vancouver on Thursday last The Lieutenant we understand is to follow the surveys made by order of Col Bonneville in 1854 and re-establish the line by setting stone posts thus permanently establishing the Government lines

TO BE REFITTED — We are informed that it is the intention of the owners of the steamer Vancouver as soon as the weather will permit, to overhaul that craft Several new and much needed improvements will also be made Until hauled out for repairs the steamer will continue to make regular trips between this city and Vancouver

CONTINUED — Mr C J West was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of larceny by bailee Defendant entered a plea of not guilty and on motion of the Deputy District Attorney the case was continued until this morning in consequence of the unavoidable absence of an important witness in behalf of the State

TRIPS RESUMED — The steamer Albany which unfortunately ran afoul of a snag on the upper Wallamet and was compelled to go in the dry dock at Oregon City for repairs is again in condition to render service Last Thursday for the first time since the accident steam was raised and the Albany started up the Wallamet

PURIM.

THE ORIGIN OF THE FESTIVAL—THE MODE OF CELEBRATION

To day is the great Hebrew festival of Purim, which is celebrated by our Hebrew fellow citizens by visits giving charities and general festivities The day is commemorative of the downfall of Haman the story of which is so graphically and beautifully told in the book of Esther The story of Haman's gallows is known to almost every person who is at all acquainted with the Bible Haman as chief favorite at the Court of Ahasuerus having determined to exterminate the Hebrews, because of the hatred of Mordecai the cousin of the Queen (Esther) and having cast lots—a pur—for a favorable day, and the execution was to be carried into effect on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month Adar which commenced this year on Feb 28th Haman had erected a special gallows in his own garden, on which he intended to hang Mordecai Esther who was a Jewess although that fact was not known to the King determined to save her people and invited the King and Haman to a banquet after which the plot was revealed and Haman ordered to be hanged on his own gallows The decree against the Jews was annulled and permission given them to slay their enemies Since that time the 14th and 15th days of Adar have been kept with feasting and rejoicing

The festival is not of divine authority but is celebrated with all due solemnity in the synagogues where the book of Esther is read and in private circles where mirth is given full sway and charity is honored by gifts from the richer to the poorer members of the faith

MR BEECHER'S ROMANCE—THE LOVE STORY HE TOLD IN A SERMON RECENTLY —Tom was a strapping healthy boy, with a great appetite He lived up in the mountains among the charcoal burners until he was nineteen Then he went down into the valley and hired out to a farmer Tom was a scullion and a drudge, and first along the farmer hesitated to trust even the hogs to his care But there was a glimmering of something in him that showed just a little through his uncouthness After a year or two he became a full farm laborer—a broad shouldered, deep chested, powerful fellow who made himself clumsily useful Well, about that time the farmer's daughter came home from school What a revelation she was to Tom! He never knew until then what it was to worship anything nor how awkward and coarse he was He would have given all he had, which wasn't much to learn how to get into a room without hitting the door or what to do with his hands or how to sit down right He began to change his clothes for better ones when he came in from the day's work, and there was about him a dawning of improvement Finally the great day came He stood trembling before the farmer's daughter, the hard word was spoken and she didn't repulse him I think there is nothing in the life of a man which so rouses and stirs him as love Tom went to the wrestling matches and what a vim there was in him He read he went to church he wanted to see how people acted And when after a good life he grew to be an old man and talked in a trembling voice to his grandchildren he used to say, "O what a wife she was to me!" Whatever I became she made me The world is full of just such instances of blessed influence —New York Sun [illegible]

ANECDOTES OF SUMNER

LONGFELLOW IN VERONA—THACKERAY IN WASHINGTON

A Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune visited Senator Sumner recently and found him in conversation with H K Brown to whom he related the following anecdote in the correspondent's presence When Longfellow was last in Verona says Sumner he of course visited the celebrated Scaliger horses One or two persons were fussing about the group but he took no special notice of them until somebody cried out "Longfellow my boy where did you come from?" The astonished poet looked up and beheld Ruskin tape measure and note book in hand taking careful measurement of the work for future reference After a conversation on points of matters with the correspondent Mr Sumner said Just a few minutes on this place We were talking about that Jackson thing a while ago I wish to tell you of a little matter in connection therewith When Thackeray was in this city we visited among the earliest places the capitol rotunda Thackeray was an artist by birth right and his judgment was beyond chance of question He took a quiet turn round the rotunda and in a few words gave to every picture its perfectly correct rank and art valuation Trumbull is your painter he said "never neglect Trumbull" Other pictures of interest were then seen after which we started homeward He had not yet been at my house and my chief anxiety was to coach him safely past that Jackson statue The conversation turning persistently upon art matters which made it certain that I was to have trouble when we should come in view of that particular excrescence We turned the dreaded corner at last when to my astonishment Mr Thackeray held straight past the hideous figure moving his head neither to the right nor left and chatting as airily as though we were strolling through an English park Now I know that the instant we came in sight of poor Jackson's caricature he saw it, realized its accumulated terrors at a glance and in the charity of his great heart took all pains to avoid having a word about it. Ah! but he was a man of rare consideration

"Supposing though" said the correspondent "he is now living and visiting here would his tongue hold fire if he should stumble across Clark Mills' Washington or Vinnie Ream's——"

"Please don't" said Mr Sumner "Good night"

THE INCREASE OF THE PRESIDENT'S SALARY — Mr Marshall Wilcox, a prominent lawyer and lifelong Republican of Berkshire Mass has written a letter on the legality of the President's increase of salary to Congressman Dawes of whom he is a neighbor and personal friend The communication is published in the Pittsfield Eagle Mr Wilcox opens his letter by declaring it to be his conviction that the part of the salary act increasing the compensation of the President " under the facts and circumstances of the case, is unconstitutional and void and ought to be repealed for no unconstitutional act should incumber the statutes of the land " In support of this conviction he quotes the provision of the Constitution in regard to the President's compensation together with Hamilton's construction of it and calls especial attention to the point presented by the latter that when Congress has once fixed the compensation for the term in which a person shall have been elected President it is fixed once for all as to that term He then cites the act of 1793 establishing the President's salary at $25 000 and says that was the only act in relation to such salary which was enacted till March 3 1873 when the new law was passed As General Grant was formally declared elected President in February 1873 he entered upon his term subject to the provision for the act of 1793 and his salary therefore could not be legally affected by the subsequent act of March 3 [illegible]

AN OIL-DRILLING STORY —In a note to a gentleman who has written a book upon the oil regions Ex Gov Horatio Seymour incidentally says When you go to Albany visit the Museum of Natural History Geology &c &c, in the State Agricultural Hall ask the keeper to show you a piece of curious stone which has to my knowledge been lying there for twenty years in that building It may throw some light on the oil question The likenesses in your book interested me They are not of men I know but they are all marked with intelligence vigor and enterprise They make a curious study for those who care for physiognomies I do not think faces show man's natural traits so much as they do their histories I thought I could read the story of each one before I looked at the letter press

THE NEW BANK NOTE WHICH WAS NOT ISSUED

The Treasury engravers wish you the people to get another kind of money in your purse. In league with the printers of paper money they have told Mr [illegible] on [illegible] [illegible] that a new style of national bank note is necessary. America owns the handsomest paper money in the world. If [illegible] paper is really cash our specie [illegible] [illegible]. An English bank note [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] wrappers from patent medicines. The German and Austrian notes have been compared to small tea chest labels. Our own [illegible] although heavy and [illegible] in execution, is more sightly than any [illegible] the American nation [illegible] [illegible] triumphs. The idea of backing the different denominations with engraved reproductions of the historic paintings in the Capitol rotunda was an inspiration.

Yet they do not dovetail with the [illegible] of Richardson's artistic opinions, and he has ordered a new series to be engraved. The first are [illegible] completed and are so singularly hideous that he hesitates to throw them into circulation. I inspected the first [illegible] printed on yesterday. They are locked up in one of the main vaults, and no employe in a responsible position is allowed to see them. One glance would even make Spinner dishonest. They will probably be burned before he returns from Florida.

A medallion of Seward is the chief object on the face of these bills. Gideon Welles and Jere Black have not been able to put him in so mean a light as the engraver. I had rather be a dog and bay the moon than to have cut that profile of Seward. The rest of the note's face is an imitation of a broken church window. The back is a counterpart of a Japanese medical chart, and as attractive as the Siamese twins will be after the Philadelphia doctors have worked over them a fortnight.

Richardson has ordered the presses stopped and will probably rescind his command entirely to engravers and printers. The styles of national bank notes would be confusing to the public and a premium to counterfeiters. The present bills are not to be improved upon by anything manufactured except the hard jingling goods from the mint.—Wash Cor Chicago Times

INTERESTING GOSSIP ABOUT A NOTED ENGLISHMAN

[London Cor N Y Times]

There was a curious letter from Mr Grenville Murray in the Times a day or two since. Mr Murray repudiated with indignation the imputation which had reached him that he was the author of two scurrilous burlesque poems the Siliad and The Coming K——. The latter was a squib on the Prince of Wales ("The Coming King") which was published a year or two since, and the other a rather stupid satire on Parliamentary Government. Nobody, I venture to say, ever supposed that Mr Murray wrote either of those pieces, but he wished it to be understood that he is anxious to be supposed a friend of the throne and an enemy to libellous literature. There have been rumors that Mr Murray is the author of the calumnies for which Lord Desart up to his eyes in Lieutenant Colonels has had to grovel on his stomach, and it has not been forgotten that Mr Murray, who now dates from Paris, had to quit London abruptly and dare not now return to it for fear of a prosecution for perjury. Mr Murray is an illegitimate son of the late Duke of Buckingham, and was at one time connected with the diplomatic service, but had to be moved from place to place and at last dismissed, for continuous misconduct. He now employs himself in libeling the class which once patronized and provided for him. On receiving his discharge from the Foreign Office a few years ago he started a paper in London called the Queen's Messenger, in which appeared the most atrocious attacks on a number of well-known noblemen and gentlemen, and in particular on Mr Hammond, the late permanent Under-Secretary of the Foreign Office. Lord Carington thrashed him in the street for a brutal libel on his father, and Mr Murray rashly summoned his castigator before a Police Magistrate, which led to his having to swear that he had nothing to do with the article in the Queen's Messenger. Lord Carington was committed to take his trial at the Quarter Sessions, but Mr Murray deemed it prudent to quit the country, and has since remained in Paris. He is supposed to be the writer of the novel called Young Brown in the Cornhill Magazine, in which some rather curious appropriations from Kinglake have just been discovered.

THE TEMPERANCE WAR

Reports from southern Ohio and Indiana show no abatement in enthusiasm concerning the women's temperance crusade. Wherever the work is inaugurated the leading people of the community take hold of it, and once set in motion it seems to be self supporting. Everywhere the reports indicate no lack of faith in ultimate success. Day after day women make their rounds, while large meetings of men and women remain in the churches to pray. Everywhere the temperance crusade is the exciting topic of conversation.

In Shelbyville, Ind, a lively antagonism has developed. The saloon keepers served written notices on the ladies that they would hold them for loss in business. Next day an immense meeting was held, and an incorporated company was organized, with $300 000 capital to fight the liquor traffic legally if other means fail. The ladies then prepared a reply to the notices of the saloon keepers, charging them with destroying the business of the community, exhausting its resources, adding to the taxes, increasing crime, and defending their right to pray for the removal of such an evil.

In Muncie, Ind, intense excitement prevails. The day after the first meeting, and before the pledge had been circulated, the druggists voluntarily tendered a pledge not to sell liquor for drinking purposes. Since then two saloons have been closed. One was ousted by the owner of the property, and the signatures were withdrawn from the petition for the other's license.

Leesburg, Highland county, Ohio, reports a complete suppression of the traffic after two weeks' effort. The organization is still kept up to watch efforts to open new saloons. Cedarsville, Greene county, reports one shop closed, and that the work is pushed in others without visible success. The same report comes from Georgetown, Brown county.

THE CZAR ON HIS DAUGHTER'S MARRIAGE

We Alexander II, Imperator and Autocrat of All the Russias, King of Poland, Grand Duke of Finland, etc, announce to our loyal subjects what follows:

Invoking the blessings of the Almighty, in common with our beloved wife the Lady Empress Maria Alexandrowna, we, with her Majesty's consent, have sanctioned a matrimonial alliance between our beloved daughter the Grand Duchess Maria Alexandrowna and Alfred Ernest Albert, Prince of Great Britain and Ireland, Duke of Edinburgh. This marriage was solemnly celebrated according to the rites of our orthodox Church on Jan 11. While announcing this event so gratifying to our paternal heart, we, with firm confidence in the love and enduring kindness of the Almighty, commend to His keeping the future destiny of our most beloved daughter and her husband. We are convinced that all loyal subjects will join us in our prayers to an All-wise Divinity for the welfare and happy [illegible] life of the young couple.

Given at St Petersburg on the 11th of January, in the 1874th year since the birth of Christ, and in the 19th year of our reign.

ALEXANDER

THE MYSTERY OF A CHIMNEY.—The city of Kingston, New York, February 13th, was startled by a singular discovery made by some workmen. They were repairing a building known as the Woolsey house, situated in the lower part of the town, and in taking down the chimney a skeleton was discovered wedged in the flue. It was pronounced by the physicians who examined it to be the skeleton of a woman apparently about 18 years of age, and had probably been in the place where it was [illegible] about a year.

[illegible] constituents of Mrs. Peabody, whom the courts refused to recognize as a member of the Boston School board, are decidedly of the opinion that the said Courts are old fogy to a [illegible]. They have constitutional [illegible] on [illegible] [illegible]. Of Judge Henley, one of his [illegible] [illegible] said: "If he had lived at the time of the creation he would have objected to the innovation. He would have protested in behalf of the veiled night of chaos."

HOW A SUCCESSFUL LONDON EDITOR WAS FINALLY WRECKED

In newspaper sets there has rarely been a more painful case than that of the late Mr Mortimer Evans. Since boyhood I have known him as an energetic journalist—half man of business, half writer. As city editor of the Times he showed considerable knowledge of financial objects, and for long years after leaving the Times he was the [illegible] of the Standard. His quick wit, [illegible] voice and bustling manner can never be forgotten by his friends. He was always great upon the virtue of self-[illegible], [illegible] duty of [illegible] for the future. It was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] literary [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of investments. Mr Evans amassed [illegible] [illegible] sum, and at this time [illegible] worth £20,000. A dispute unhappily arose in the Standard [illegible] [illegible] friends became exasperated against each other, and one morning Mr Evans [illegible] left hot temper [illegible] and sore. Nothing would [illegible] but they must start another Tory paper, and at once [illegible] Evans threw himself into it [illegible] as well as his labor. He was sure of success. He would listen to no prudential suggestions. But the Hour proved a failure. It was not so [illegible] as the Standard, and a fresh number of [illegible] were [illegible] expressly for buying it. To start a daily paper in London in these days with any hope of permanent profits three hundred thousand pounds, I take it, must be spent. A thousand pounds is gone in a day. There is no man so [illegible]. Mr. Evans' thousands and then hundreds—the product of oh how much industry and sagacity—flew, and there was no return, no other cry than "give!" At last all went, and a week or two ago he was compelled to seek the protection of the bankruptcy Court. He could not face the horror. Youth and middle age were gone, and he knew the world too well to expect to be happy in it as a ruined man. His health gave way, and he died of a broken heart. This is no romance, but a true story, and I grieve when I think of it. He had ever a kind word for young men, and his buoyant spirits made him a pleasant companion. It is painful to think now of the scenes in which he was the authoritative friend of others who he feared might be too rash, to remember the innocent satisfaction with which he would allude to his own good management, and then to think of the gloom and agony that were awaiting him.—From a London Letter

OLD THAD STEVENS

[From a Washington Letter.]

Old Thad Stevens, who as I know more of him seems to me to have been the sternest partisan without [illegible] soul, was one day entering the room of the committee on elections, of which he was chairman. As he passed through the door one of the Democratic members of the committee, speaking of a contested election case then under consideration, said: "Both of the candidates were d—d fools." Thad, breaking in upon them, said: "But which is our d—d fool? That's the fellow I am for. Let us have his name and we will put him in." A safe maxim for the average politician is, if there is any law on your side of a contested election case put in the man of your own party, if you can.

Another on Old Thad. Pierce M. B. Young, now a representative in Congress from Mississippi, was a Confederate general and a graduate of West Point. He came to Washington soon after the war, seeking to have his disabilities removed. He is a fine manly fellow, and seems to have accepted the results of the war in good faith. He went to Thad, and Thad began to play with him, as he sometimes did with those whom he intended to make his victims. He said: "You are a graduate of West Point, I believe?"

"Yes sir."

"Educated at the expense of the United States, I believe, which you swore faithfully to forever defend?"

"Yes, sir."

"You went into the service for the infernal rebellion?"

"Yes sir."

"You were a brigade commander in the raid in Pennsylvania which destroyed the property of so many of my constituents?"

"Yes sir."

"It was a squad of men under your direct charge and under your personal command, that burned my rolling mill?"

"Yes, sir."

Young thought he was gone, but seeing that the old veteran had come into the possession of the last fact which Young did not dream he knew, it was impossible to deny the truth of his questions. Thad roared out: "Well, I like your d—d impudence. I will see that your disabilities are removed. Good morning." And the next day the bill passed the House.

THE BOSTON HUBUB

ALL DECENT PEOPLE INDIGNANT AT THE SIMMONS APPOINTMENT—SOMETHING ABOUT THE MAN WHO WAS CONFIRMED BY THE SENATE

BOSTON, Feb 17.—The nomination of Supervisor Simmons for Collector of the port has evoked a storm of indignation on the part of the anti-Butlerites only equaled by their surprise and dismay at his cool unblushing packing of the caucuses last fall in the interest of the big sachem of Essex. The Advertiser, which denounced Simmons and his gang last fall, says that Mr Simmons [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a ward politician trained in a bad school of political chicane—a school on which the controlling sentiment of this country has permanently set the seal of its condemnation. We make no random charge when we say that much of the corruption that has worked its way into the politics of this State, and especially of Boston and its neighborhood, is owing to the active personal efforts of Mr Simmons and those with whom he has been most associated. It demands his rejection by the Senate, and calls on Massachusetts Congressmen to protest against his confirmation.

The Journal is as bold as it ever [illegible] against him, and The [illegible] declares that our Congressmen must by this time have got some foretaste of public sentiment [illegible] the nomination of William A. Simmons for Collector. The wires are burdened with dispatches directed to members of the Massachusetts delegation requesting them to do their utmost against the confirmation. Mr Simmons has himself gone to Washington for the purpose of looking after his private interest. He will find there such expressions of distrust from this quarter as will not increase the satisfaction with which he probably views his efforts thus far.

The Traveller, Butler's organ, says nothing editorially, but states as an item of news that the merchants are getting up a public [illegible] to protest against Simmons. Still the Washington dispatches say he is likely to be confirmed, and that the heads of ex-Gov. Harriman of New Hampshire, naval officer of the port, and Gen. W. B. Underwood, surveyor, are to fall, and some of the others [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. It is well known [illegible] [illegible] of Butler in this matter, and Simmons [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] THE PRINTER'S DEVIL.—When Aldus Manutius set up in business as a printer in Venice he came into possession of a little negro boy. This boy was soon known all over the city as the little black devil. [illegible] time negroes were not often seen in Venice, and some of the [illegible] [illegible] people believed him to be either an embodiment or an emissary of Satan, and [illegible] Aldus in the work of his profession. One day Manutius, desiring to dispel this [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] poor [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that I, Aldus Manutius, printer to the Holy Church and the Doge, have this day made exposure to all of the printer's devil. And if any think he is not like us, flesh and blood, they may come and pinch him, and they will find that though he [illegible] black, he is human.

Here's a happy condition of affairs in Cuba for the [illegible] friend. The Bank of Havana has [illegible] another [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] up to 850 per barrel and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. They are having happy times.

The prevailing depression of business, so much complained of, does not find any confirmatory evidence in the current earnings of the railroads. The New York Bulletin publishes a detailed statement of the gross earnings of nineteen of the principal roads for the month of January, which show an increase from $[illegible] in 1873 to $[illegible] this year—a gain of $[illegible] or at the rate of 10½ per cent.

The importations into England in 1873 of the essential articles of food, such as Wheat, Corn, Barley, Oats, Potatoes, Pork, meats (salt and preserved), Hams, Lard, Eggs and Fish, imported from other countries, aggregated during the last year $306 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of $[illegible] in excess of the importation of similar [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fully one half of all this food is [illegible] [illegible] the United States.

The New York World publishes a very interesting exhibit of the business of the various steamship lines plying between New York and Europe. Some idea of the immense traffic and travel for the year 1873 between that port and Europe may be gathered from the fact that the total number of trips during the year was 1,[illegible] that there was received for passenger travel the sum of $[illegible] and for freight $[illegible] making the aggregate receipts [illegible]

The Nail factories of the United States number [illegible] two with [illegible] Nail machines [illegible] [illegible] in 1873 [illegible] kegs of Nails of 100 [illegible] each.

The product of the bloomeries and forges of the United States for 1873 was about 80,000 tons.

The total receipts of the carrying trade between New York and foreign ports amounted during the year [illegible] [illegible] nearly $[illegible]

Home Produce Market.

The volume of trade in this department opens for the week without any flattering prospects. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] for all kinds of produce in San Francisco with one or two exceptions—and the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] but little shipped from this State—are dull and generally tending downward. Shippers at this point seem but little desirous of making large orders for future delivery, as the outlook, either as to facilities for transportation or prices in the markets of demand [illegible]. Wheat buyers appear indifferent about making purchases, as it is claimed that enough is already secured to load the ships chartered, and present rates of charters will not justify the payment of the prices at which the cereal is held here, taking into the account the downward tendency of the European market. Prices for the cereal as well as for other products in our local market are unchanged from the quotations last given.

Shipping Intelligence.

The sailing of the steamer Oriflamme hence for San Francisco has been postponed until Thursday at 4 P M.

The wheat vessels now in port are all nearly loaded. The [illegible] and Etta Stewart had not gone to sea at last advice from Astoria.

The bark Jenny Pitts was towed down the river to day. She will load with lumber at Cementville for San Francisco.
